What could be more festive, hip and swingin' than spending the holidays with Frank, Sammy, Dean and Joey?

Unequaled in its style, feel and presentation, with dozens of national appearances and multiple touring casts, "Sandy Hackett's Rat Pack Show" celebrates the season with "Someday at Christmas," a new Yuletide extravaganza that incorporates the festive sounds of the season into an entertainment experience that has become a true global phenomenon, seen by more than a million people worldwide.

The show, which stars Hackett as Joey Bishop and David DeCosta as Frank Sinatra, previewed this dynamic holiday edition with a performance at Bloomington (Illinois) Center for the Performing Arts in early December.

The producers, Hackett and Lisa Dawn Miller—nominated as Best Featured Actress in a Musical in Broadway World's 2010 Awards for her portrayal in the show as "Frank's One Love"—have created a compelling 16 minute promo film for the holiday show that includes performance clips and exclusive behind the scenes footage. It can be viewed at http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3jpP1rlDUAM.

They are currently booking dates for the 2013 holiday tour.

"Someday at Christmas" is named after a popular Stevie Wonder song written by Miller's father, legendary Motown songwriter Ron Miller.

The musical and comedy driven celebration of the legendary ensemble kicked off its 50 city 2012-13 tour September 28 at the Three Rivers Casino in Eugene, Oregon. It runs through May 2013.
